The cabbage patch dolls, medical headway, economy, and foreign affairs were a few topics discussed daily in 1983. Many shoppers found it necessary to riot for the almost homely Cabbage Patch Dolls. These soft cuddly dolls came complete with adoption papers. They became the Holy Grail of the 1983 Christmas shopping season as many courageous hopeful mothers tried to locate a doll for their children.

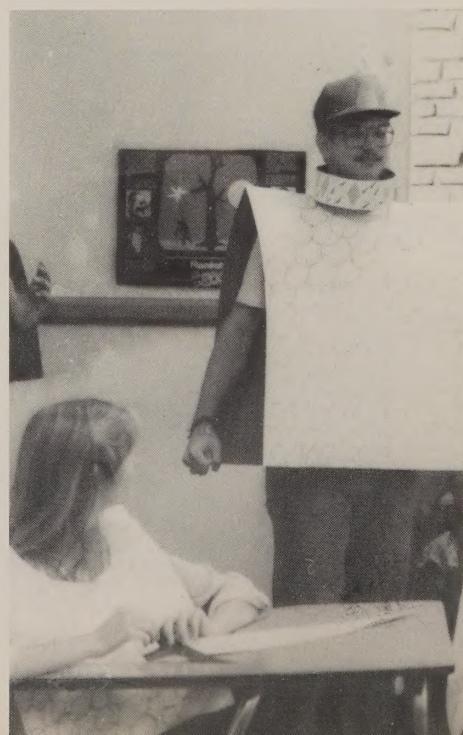

A very courageous person in the medical field was Barney Clark. An artificial heart replaced his diseased heart and became the first transplant of its kind, and allowed him a few more months of life.

In political and foreign affairs, marines had several bad encounters in Grenada and Lebanon. Over 200 marines died when a suicide terrorist drove an automobile laden with explosives into their barracks in Lebanon.

In Grenada, Cubans were forced out by the American Marines, after an appeal by the other Caribbean nations.

Closer to home many Americans became hopeful as the economy turned around. Unemployment dropped as many factories began hiring again. The automobile industry showed a profit for the first time in three years. Consumer confidence was up also, and a good

Christmas buying season was experienced by many retailers. Interest rates on home loans were down and the stock market continued with substantial gains.

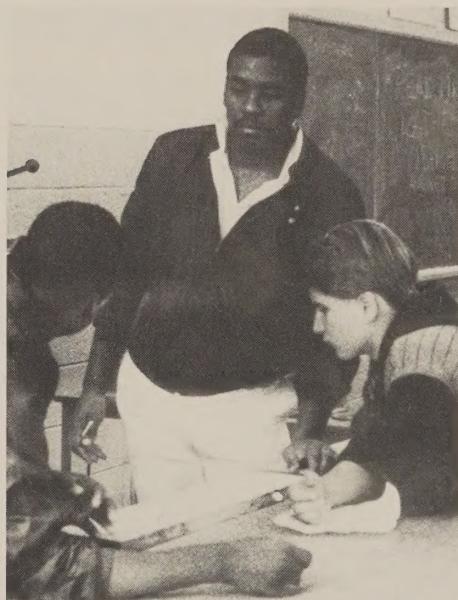

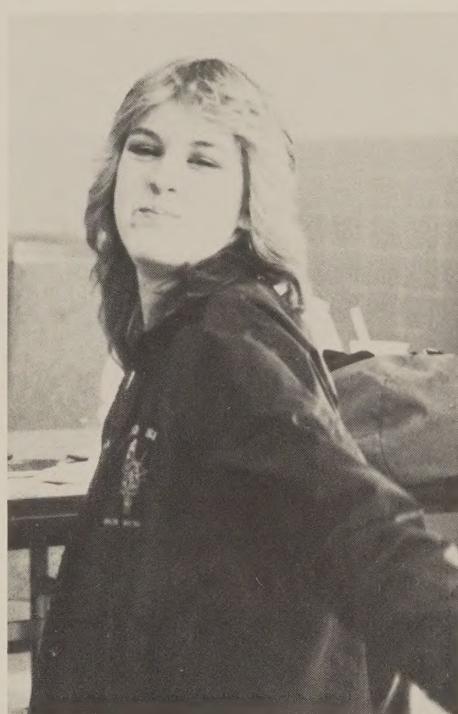

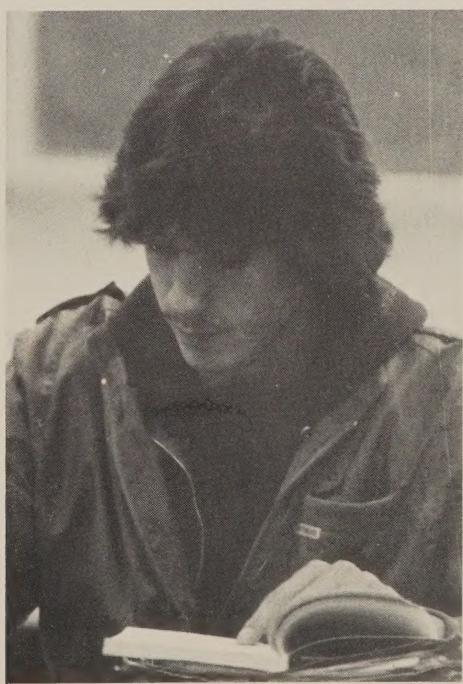

These memorable events showed us that as the world became more advanced and continued to change, we made it better and proved that we are the "people" who can make it work.

Crowding adds to confusion

Overwhelmed by the strict regimentation associated with school, summer addicts began experiencing withdrawal symptoms as school re-opened. Once again students compared summer escapades. As usual, problems of the first few days included: crowded halls, filling out forms, long cafeteria lines, and overall confusion. As seniors rejoiced over the fact that this was their last year, underclassmen were plagued with thoughts of the long years ahead. For all, the beginning of the school year was a time to concentrate on the business of being the best . . . the PEOPLE of Highland Springs!

New fads make debut

Students found many different ways of expressing themselves as new styles and fads caught on. New wave clothing was fairly nouveau and caught on quickly. Styles ranged from shirts with miscellaneous zippers, punk boots, bandanas, jean jackets, leather pants and checkered shoes to Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein, Gloria Vanderbilt, and Sasson as the preppy look remained tenacious.

The country look stayed with many students who wrapped themselves in flannel shirts, Levi's and cowboy boots. Many students enjoyed dressing up as they indulged in the vogue look. Sporty fashions included surf shirts, Ocean Pacific wear, hooded sweatshirts, and anything cotton. Button mania took hold as many students tried to accumulate more buttons than anyone else. Buttons with rock groups or familiar sayings on them proved the most popular. Varying styles and tastes were reflected as new fads made their debut. — R.M.M.

Hundreds of cheers roared out of every wall, door, crack, and crevice of the gym as the mock Homecoming court entered. Contestants paraded around the gym portraying familiar characters such as Michael Jackson and Diana Ross, who took first place.

Pep rallies became a great place for students to participate, be themselves, take pride in their sport, jump, dance, scream and shout and not have to worry about who was watching.

The juniors' and seniors' skits satirized teachers, cheerleaders, and football players, and the seniors presented the twelve years of school.

During one pep rally, the colorguard and majorettes performed a portion of their show. At each pep rally, one could always hear the band playing the school song, Joyner's jam, "Whip it", and "Freakazoid" during which many students enjoyed dancing and watching others dance. Pep rallies also became a great place to let loose all of one's energy built up during the long hours of school. R.M.M.

People are important

School activities are important to all who participate. It takes people to bring every thing together and to make it work.

Homecoming got the year started off and spirit flowing. The play symbolized the coming of spring. The prom marked the nearing end of the school year, and then graduation led to the final step for our seniors and the beginning of a new year for underclassmen. People helped shape the school year and its outcome, and activities brought them together

BUTTONS AND BAGS

Why was the student body wearing its clothes inside out? Because it was Inside-Out Day, one of the days of Spirit Week. During Inside Out day, people could be seen parading the halls with their clothes on inside-out.

Punk Day, the first day of Spirit Week, was a day when people could express themselves by the way they dressed or wore make-up. Many people even had the spirit to wear garbage bags to school.

Mismatch Day brought out one's ability to get dressed in the dark. People wearing plaids, polka-dots and stripes could be seen everywhere.

Button Day may not have been strange or hilarious, but it was easier to participate in. There were blue buttons, black and yellow buttons, Springer buttons, complaint buttons, and many others.

Spirit Day was a day on which one showed his or her spirit by wearing black and gold.

At the end of Homecoming week, Mock Homecoming, an event in which the winners are chosen by the applause of the audience, was held in the new gym. Many people tried out, but only 11 couples were chosen. Some of the men tried to provoke the audience into voting for them by lifting their skirts at the audience, bringing hysterical laughter from the bleachers. Michelle Faulk and Tyrone Cotman's attempt won as Michael Jackson and Billie Jean. The band Played "Freakazoid" to get things rolling, and the pep rally provided an hour of spirit and fun. — TAT

E.T. Takes Second

The silent streets of Highland Springs were overtaken by the sound of music. The cool of the fall night did not stop people from coming out and showing the true spirit of Highland Springs.

Crowds filled Kreiter Stadium hoping to see a victory. Many an alumni came back to see old friends and teachers and the spirit was still noticeable. Halftime arrived with Patrick Henry in the lead.

The Homecoming ceremonies shone brightly to prove the theme "Shoot for the Stars." Each class had a creative interpretation of the theme. The seniors' "84 Special" won first with the freshmen's "E.T." second. After the announcements of the winners of the floats, the homecoming court was introduced. Only three would be winners. Lisa Mabry was announced first as Crown Bearer, Shelly Baker as maid of Honor, and the Homecoming Queen of 1983 was Jamie Sharp. The football game continued after the announcements. Pressure was noticeable in the final stages. Springers were able to pull ahead for a short time only to have a Patrick Henry overtake them, 16-6.-KRM

If one wanted to see a lot of talented young ladies performing to their utmost, then the Miss Highlander Pageant provided the opportunity. Our new Miss Highlander was Tracy Pervall; the 1st runner-up was Lauren Kennedy; and the second runner-up was Valerie Marlow. Last year's winner of the Miss Highlander pageant, Eda Spivey, crowned the new title-holder.

Valerie Marlow showed her singing talents in the song "Evergreen," and Lisa Bohannon used her dancing skills, but Tracy Pervall won the contest with her modern dancing.

The orientation before the pageant, held in the library, gave the contestants a chance to get to know each other better, to meet judges, and to relax a little before the contest. When the contest was over, everyone could relax again until next year when the pressure would again be on. — TAT

Where's Harvey?

"I've never been to a play where I couldn't see the main character." This may have been one of the statements made after viewing the spring musical, Harvey. Harvey also happened to be the main character, who just happened to be a six-foot tall white rabbit. That may seem a little out of the ordinary, but what really made it strange was the fact that this rabbit was also invisible!

Director Mr. Ted Jones stated that the play was very difficult. "Comedy is probably the most difficult emotion to portray." Yet through intelligence, diligence, and sheer hard work the cast and crew managed to diminish any problems at hand.

Harvey's best friend, Elwood P. Dowd, played by Danny Llewellyn, was probably the most interesting part in the play. From the way he played his part, it was hard to believe Harvey was not actually there! Every gesture towards Harvey that Danny made brought Harvey to life.

Paige Beattie had probably the most difficult part in the play. Paige portrayed the part of Elwood's sister, a partly insane woman. A lot of feeling had to be put into this part and Paige managed to captivate the audience with her portrayal.

Through determination and perseverance, the school production company managed to present a most enjoyable, and interesting piece of drama.-SLB

Juniors Step Out

While students prepared for the prom, some juniors spent time decorating. Due to the unusual location, the junior class didn't have to spend weeks decorating. Students spent after school hours getting things arranged and organized. The day of the prom juniors were found working tediously with balloons and top hats as center pieces on the tables. Many balloons decorated the room at Howard Johnsons.

This prom was special due to the fact that it was our first off-campus prom ever. Many enjoyed the off-campus activity, and hoped to see more. Hot hor'doeuvres were served, consisting of shish kabobs, shrimp and crabmeat. The rhythmic sounds of KA$H got many people dancing. Many assembled to congratulate the outstanding students who were recognized by the many honor societies. Beta Club, National Honor Society, Thespians, and Quill and Scroll tapped many students that met their requirements.

Students were recognized for their outstanding achievements in individual fields. Parents, teachers, and students attended the honors banquet held in the cafeteria. ## GO FOR IT!

Many smiling seniors could be seen all over school. Why? Because graduation was just around the corner. But first, many of them would receive awards and honors at the Awards Assembly in the new gym. Awards were given to people who had perfect attendance, and to people who made honor roll. There were business awards, and a new award, the Presidential Academic Award.

At the Baccalaureate, the preacher, Reverend Euting, from New Bridge Baptist Church, spoke to the seniors and left them with the thought, "Don't be happy with being in the middle; always strive for the top."

Rewards Received

After much work, there is a time for rewards. On June 5, 1984, Highland Springs graduated 290 students. Many students were recognized for their achievements earlier in the week, but on Monday night all were recognized for their goals. Kim Dabney spoke of the long trip taken before reaching one of many goals. She took a humorous look back on life, but she was sincerely saying thanks to all who helped. Many students touched on the same subject and proceeded to go further. Paul Smith, valedictorian, spoke of the future success that seemed to be on the minds of everyone.

Graduation rewarded students for their completion of their education. The diploma received is just a start to the road of knowledge and the application of skills to achieve success. — KRM.

People

in organizations

Clubs are People

School clubs allowed people to get involved. From singing in the chorus to producing the annual, students had a wide variety of clubs to choose from. Some organizations, such as DECA, required a particular class to be taken. Others such as Beta Club required academic achievement. Clubs took on many projects. The Key Club cleaned up after football games while TI helped with all of the school's productions. Many other organizations had worthwhile projects, also. Thus, a variety of clubs was available to every one. Whether the club was intellectually or athletically inclined, it allowed the people of Highland Springs to gain skills that they would take with them into the future.

The honor societies tapped in many members throughout the year. National Honor Society and Beta Club tapped in students who attained scholastic achievement. Those students who were interested in drama and theater-related activities were tapped into Thespians. Quill and Scroll tapped students who excelled in the field of journalism. The honor societies participated in many activities throughout the year. Thespian members took a major part in Harvey and helped with the Miss Highlander Pageant. Many Beta Club members helped out at the beginning of the year by going to the 9th grade homerooms and telling the freshmen more about high school life. These and other contributions to school life showed that honor societies were active and beneficial groups as well as a means for recognizing excellence.

People People

The theme of this book is people. Rhonda Martin chose this after much thought. Being editor had many duties besides thinking of the theme, including designing the cover, and deciding what goes where.

The whole process leading to the finished product was not an easy road to follow. New people had to learn the tricks of the trade while the experienced ones had to learn new ways of improving their skills. Over the summer Mr. Rafferty and two students, Rhonda Martin and Cathy Taylor, attended a summer workshop dealing with producing a yearbook. They shortened deadlines and improved layouts. Black and white pictures were used to their fullest. They also discovered ways of keeping the cost of the yearbooks low by cutting the price of production.

New students learned from the experienced ones. Drawing layouts, writing copies and getting pictures was all new to them. Due to cooperation and determination, nineteen people got together and were able to produce what you are holding now. — SLB

Inexperience Overcome

Learning by experience is a phrase that would best describe the 1983-84 staff of the Fling.

The newspaper staff had to face many problems. Lack of knowledge was the main one. With very few returning staff members, and new sponsors, putting out a newspaper was a difficult task, but they succeeded and produced three issues.

At the end of the year the Fling produced a special senior issue. This included an overview of the school year, senior superlatives seniors' last wills and testaments and many more articles.

Much of the work had to be done after school since there wasn't a class period to complete the work in.

Despite the inexperienced workers, the newspaper staff had an educational and productive year. — SLB

HARD WORK PAYS OFF

BELOW: Majorettes add the final touch to an outstanding performance.

Hard work paid off for the marching band. They won over twenty awards, most of them first place. They were Grand Champions of the Parry McCluer Annual Band Day. They were the only Virginia band to place in the 9th Annual Lynchburg Classic Marching Band Competition. Each member put a lot of money, time and effort into the marching band. They spent a lot of time raising money for travel and equipment. Members were expected to be prompt to all practices and events. April Fogg, a colorguard member, said, "It's a good feeling when you're out on the field. You're representing the school and you know that everyone is watching you."

"Big Brothers and Sisters" Begins

Who organized the Homecoming parade, or kept the Coke and Lance machines filled? Who else but the Student Government Association? The S.G.A. also sponsored our mascot Nessie, issued class cards, coordinated all fund raising, and even started a Big Brother/Big Sister program.

"The major thing that keeps us from doing more is lack of student involvement explained Ms. Furguson;

the sponsor for S.G.A. When Julie Coppedge was asked what the most fulfilling thing about being president was, she replied, "Trying to determine just one thing that is fulfilling about being S.G.A. president is a difficult task."

I like the responsibility that comes with the job, but I especially enjoy meeting students from other schools throughout S.G.A. sponsored activities."

A normal day during the S.G.A. class period may have consisted of discussing new projects, running errands, or just doing homework from other classes. During a meeting of the student senate, students brought up any ideas they felt might improve the school. Even though all the suggestions were not used, students tried to do their best, and many improvements were made. It proved a good year for new and old S.G.A. members. They stayed occupied and enthused throughout the year. — SLB

Service = Most Active

Cleaning up after a football game wasn't an easy job, but someone had to. This was only one of the many jobs performed by the Key Club. Other jobs included painting teachers' lounges, cleaning graffiti off the walls and changing the marquee. Members also assisted as guides for in-service day, freshman orientation and graduation.

The club also sponsored many community projects. A blood drive for the Richmond Metro Service, a carwash, a cakewalk, and a Christmas party for nursing homes were just some of the activities.

Key Club wasn't just for anybody. Even though it's an all male club, sweethearts were allowed. One had to maintain a 2.0 grade average and be voted into the club by the officers and members.

In the fall of 1983 the club was recognized as one of the most active in the district. One reason was the fact that it was as much a service organization for the community as it was for the school.

LEADERSHIP SKILLS

DECA helped the school by developing leadership skills for students, developing vocational understanding and civic consciousness, and by social development. They did this by going to seminars and contests, going on field trips and picnics, sponsoring fashion shows, and by getting students involved in the community. DECA attended the District Fall Rally in Short Pump where they played volleyball and softball. They held an auction for MDA and sponsored a fashion show. The club attended State Competition in Roanoke and attended 2001 VIP Supper Club for an employer appreciation dinner.

VICA held regular meetings and helped the Christmas Mother. They competed against different VICA clubs and learned leadership skills. Industrial Cooperative juniors and seniors were involved in VICA. VICA competed in the District II VICA Contest and won three trophies. They maintained three bulletin boards relating to VICA and sold giant coloring books and Springer pins.

The Future Business Leaders of America, met as a whole group instead of meeting in separate chapters. FBLA promoted leadership through the school and the community. Each member was expected to participate in at least two projects. FBLA consisted of 78 members. They were involved in many business skills events and were recognized as an Honor Chapter. S.K.B.

Fifty Do a Lot

Many students who were interested in pursuing a career in the home economics field joined FHA. This club allowed them to use classroom skills many times during the year.

FHA members didn't just sit around planning the future, they did many things for the present. Since FHA only had fifty members each student had more responsibility. At Halloween members gave a party at the Children's Home. During the Christmas holidays members sold cheese balls and collected money and cans of non-perishable goods. They also went carolling at the Masonic Home. For the catering class, Christmas turned out very special. They cooked a full meal and gave it to an unfortunate family.

Besides activities for the community, many things were also done for the school. They collected money to get new carpet for the library, and also had secret pals on the varsity basketball team. Before each game, members of the basketball team were given a special goody bag of fruits and other snacks. FHA also succeeded in getting a scholarship for an outstanding senior who planned to pursue a home economic field.

Even though FHA lacked members, they did not lack enthusiasm and support.

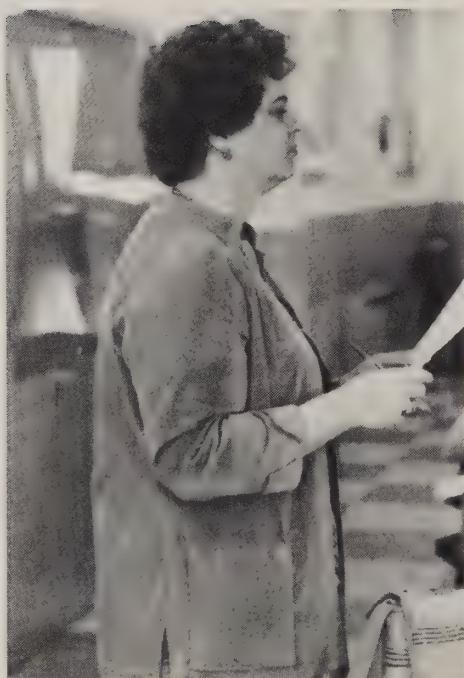

The point stressed by Mrs. Stokes, "Everybody is a homemaker," definitely was evident through this year. — SLB

ACTIVITIES ATTRACT MEMBERS

A total of seventy people were involved in the Foreign Language Club, the largest number of participants ever. Members took either Spanish, French, or German. The club went to the Magic Pan and a Mexican restaurant for dinner to taste the foods of different countries. They also had a Christmas party and planned a ski trip. The club sold book covers, two-year planning calendars, and stuffed animals as fund raisers. In addition to these activities, the club became more language oriented and understood the customs of different countries better. S.K.B.

T.I. SERVICES FINE ARTS

Talents Incorporated was a service organization of fine arts. The organization consisted of students who were involved in fine arts. T.I. helped out the department, contributed funds to the stage curtain, sold posters, and was involved in the homecoming parade. They went to dramatic productions, had a Valentine's party, and had a picnic at Maymont Park. They held a drawing in which the winner became a guest at the Swift Creek Dinner Theater. — S.K.B.

It Makes You Feel Special

Student Organization for Developing Attitudes was probably one of the hardest groups to gain admittance to. As well as filling out an application with many essay-type questions, the senior members voiced their opinion of each student. "Not enough people realize how much of an honor it is to be in SODA," commented Mrs. Varney.

One SODA team consisted of two students — preferably one girl and one boy. They would travel to an elementary school fifth grade class and teach the students positive ways to deal with negative problems such as child abuse, alcoholism, drugs and many more problems.

One SODA group, Scot Seay and Julie Coppededge, had a special class. This class consisted of children with learning impediments. Many activities took place throughout the year to make these children feel special, one of which was a talent show. During this children were able to show off their special talents. Many games were used to teach the kids.

One of the SODA members said, "SODA is so much fun because when these children show you how much they look forward to seeing you, it just makes you feel as special as they are." — SLB

Enthusiasm — A Necessity

A good cheerleader should have pep, enthusiasm, good character, and understand of the sports. One problem that the cheerleaders had was keeping up their grades, which could be hard when cheering two and three times a week. They also had to face the criticism of other students. Many students didn't realize the responsibilities a cheerleader had. They often joked and laughed about them but didn't think how hard it was to get out in front of the whole school or a large crowd. The cheerleaders practiced twice a week for up to one and one-half hours. They did many fund-raising activities such as selling spirit ribbons, spirit links, pom-poms, and doughnuts. They supported the teams in every way and cheered them on to Victory. — S.K.B.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT DEBATED

Debate and forensics was a combined organization. People in forensics, poetry, prose, oratories, and current news. They were involved in many competitions. They competed at Monocan High School, Longwood, and Hermitage High School. People in forensics also presented a Christmas program and were in charge of Black History Month.

Debaters researched and studied a resolution which was selected from the Virginia High School League. The topic was capital punishment. Debaters attended a workshop at the University of Richmond. They competed at James Madison, winning four rounds out of twelve as novice debaters. Members in each club were expected to take an active part, attend all meetings, practice and rehearse, and participate in at least two competitions to promote the club. — S.K.B.

Club Helps Easter Seals

There was only one organization for only industrial arts students, AIASA, America's Industrial Arts Students Association. This club stressed learning to live in a technical world. The main goal was to prepare students with leadership abilities.

During March, as one of their many community projects, AIASA raised money for the Easter Seals Foundation. They also built display cases for the school.

AIASA represented Highland Spring many times during the year by placing in many competitions; included in these competitions were the Industrial Bowl, public speaking contest, writing contest, and several others. This year's AIASA club consisted of 539 members, making it the second-largest in the state. Highland Springs also had several members on the state board, including state president, George Avegeros, and the state advisor, Mr. Brooks. — SLB

People

Just who are the People?

"People in sports," What exactly does that mean? One answer is those people who love to play sports and who are willing to take the time, dedication, and courage to face the competition. The many people who did participate in the fall, winter, spring sports accomplished many personal goals as well as District, Regional and State records. These Springer showed their fellow competitors exactly what hard work and dedication were and how it paid off in the long run. The Springer Tradition continued. — MAH

Ward Tackles New Job

For the players this involved learning many different plays and getting used to a new coach's techniques. The team seemed to have adjusted, but still experienced difficulty. There were many awards given out this year. Many players received varsity letters for their first time and also gained titles such as All-District, Regional, and State.

All-American

There was one special award given this year to senior Brian Washington, named one of the fifty All-American Football Players by Parade Magazine. The last All-American award given to a Highland Springs football player was to Jake Adams in 1959.

Coach Ward said of his first year coaching, "The players had much character and were a hard-working team, although we had problems due to inexperience. We seemed to come out of the seasonal finals well, finishing sixth overall."

As for the year, it was a rebuilding year. Many varsity lettermen from previous years as freshmen and sophomores returned to play football again. The team next year should be more experienced and much improved," replied Coach Ward.

The captains for the team were Bobby Christian, Brian Washington and Tom Pack. Coach Ward commented on these three players, "Their leadership held us together this year. These three men represent an excellent senior class due to their maturity and athletic abilities."

J.V. Team Surpasses All Expectations

Who are the next varsity football players? The J.V. football team began as an experienced team with a winning streak against Tucker and Armstrong-Kennedy. It was the first victory over Armstrong Kennedy in three or four years.

Coach Meunier and Coach Martin commented, "Each game was really tough and the team played well; it was a real challenge. The best two games were with Armstrong Kennedy and Hopewell."

The team consisted of twenty-five sophomores and twenty-five freshmen. Captain Shawn Davis's leadership helped the players realize their abilities.

Coach Meunier and Coach Martin referred to the team as having the most spirit they had ever seen, "I thought it helped the team achieve many goals which will help them in their future years of football." The team finished its season with three wins, five losses, and a tie. They also ranked fifth in the seasonal standings and tied with Freeman.

Two players received special recognition. Shawn Davis received the highest percentage of pass completions and Anthony Davis caught the most passes in a single season.

Even this experienced team received some help. Todd Gary, a former All Metro, devoted much of his time to helping the J.V. Team. — MAH

Team Improves

"Hard-working and dedicated" was what Coach Jenkins said about the cross country team members. He also said that the team members were cooperative, hard-working, proud, and spirited.

The cross country team didn't have a successful season because it was young and inexperienced. They did however progress and improve over the course of the season.

Coach Jenkins also stated that it would take time to build a strong competitive level, but the potential was there. With the attitude and pride of returning runners, next year looks like a successful season. — JFP —

NEW AMMO NEEDED

What happens when the whole starting line-up on the basketball team are seniors? This happened on the 1984 squad. When Coach Lancaster was asked about replacements, he commented, "When you fire all the shots in your gun you simply reload. New fresh ammo. Help me find some quickly!"

The team's seniors included Brian Washington, Michael Cooper, Lawrence Walden, Willie Wood, Anthony Bowman, Tommy Samuels, Lamont Cain, and Mike Rozzell.

The beginning of the season had its conflicts due to bad weather before an important game. Ice storms made the roads slippery and getting to the gym difficult.

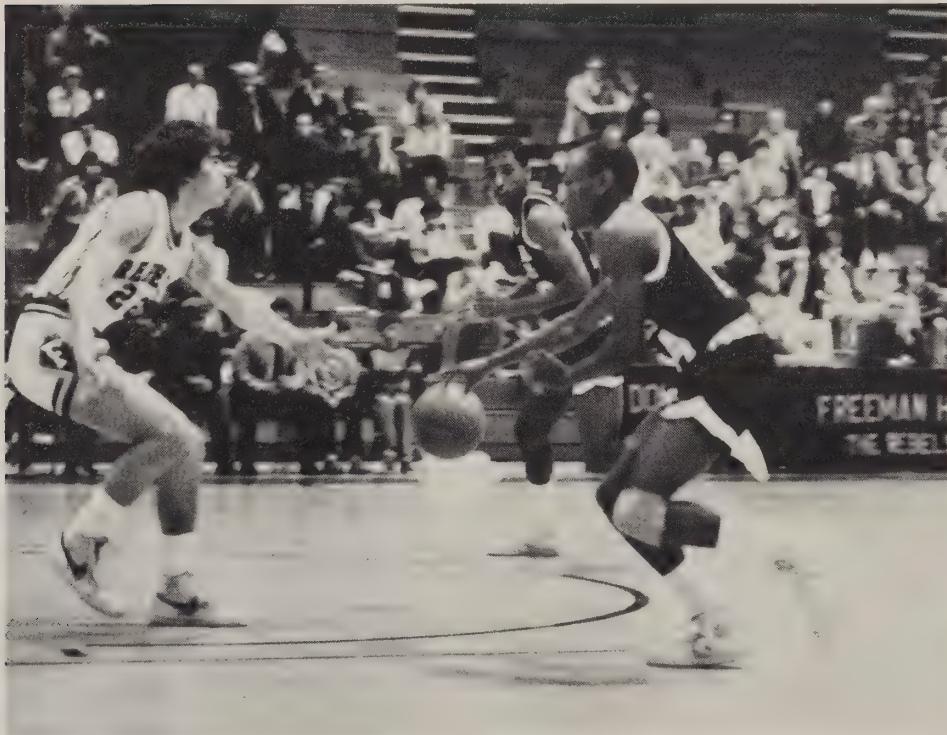

Practice usually lasts for two hours.

Many players practiced beyond the scheduled times and used prayer and rap sessions for motivation.

The opening game was a big success. The team won against Bruton 89-58. There were many other highlights including a 68-57 victory over A.K., a 60-59 away win against Lee Davis, a 76-75 OT win against Hermitage, and a double overtime 67-64 win against Petersburg. Many of the players exhibited energy and determination. Their season was very successful, extending to the second round of the playoffs, where they lost a hard fight to A.K. in the district finals, 51-40. Lancaster said, "Life has its way of teaching us things we need to help us in the future endeavors." — MAH

Who beat J.H.W. for the first time in double overtime? The Lady Springers basketball team, of course. "In just one year the team turned itself around and became a promising team," replied Coach Lancaster. He also stated that the reason the team only placed fourth in the final standings was that they were younger and less experienced and heavily relied on top scorers Octavia Little and Robin Blue.

This was Coach Lancaster's first year coaching girl's basketball since the 1980 season. Lancaster said, "I enjoyed teaching these girls and am looking forward to next season."

Octavia Little received special recognition and made All-Colonial District and made the most points in one game. The team members said Octavia gave them support and was a good player overall.

Lancaster said the team will be much stronger and more experienced next year and will come out better than ever.

Sophs Learn

What was the biggest accomplishment of the J.V. team this year? The J.V. team defeated a lofty JHW team twice and the Henrico Warriors, who were second in the district.

"This year they abolished the ninth grade team so we competed against teams that were made up of mostly sophomores. This was difficult for our young team, especially early in the season," commented Coach Cain.

Although the season didn't go as well as expected, Coach Cain said he was pleased with the outcome of the season and should see a major improvement next year.

Russell Davis, a sophomore on the J.V. team, stated, "We were young and inexperienced and one of the shortest teams in the district, but overall I was happy on how the season went." — JFP

FROSH ACHIEVES

According to Coach Boltz, the golf team was better than expected. For the first time in two years, it beat Hermitage twice and Henrico once. "They came in fifth place in the finals," said Boltz.

A freshman, Mike Tignor won fifth place at Regionals, a great achievement for the team. Tignor commented, "I played my best golf at Regionals and I only missed state by two shots." Greg Owens, also a freshman, was considered most improved player.

When asked what made the golf team different from previous ones, Coach Boltz replied, "They took instructions well and they were the youngest team coached." The team consisted of three freshmen, Greg Owens, Brett Banister, and Mike Tignor, as well as sophomores Paul Hitchcock and Glenn Baar. "All team members plan to return next year," said Greg Owens, "and we're going to be even better." — DLS

2 Hrs. Daily Rx For Success

Love, foul, set — the vocabulary of the tennis team. The team had many players whom they depended on for a good season, including seniors Paul Smith, Roy Satterwhite, junior Carl Bell, and freshmen Naji Salhab and David Hence. Practice consisted of overhand lobs, backhands, and other drills. A two hour daily practice after school gave the chance to improve skills.

A big boost for the team was when Carl Bell and Roy Satterwhite won the Colonial District doubles championship and set a new school record. Carl's final record was 16-3 and Roy ended the season at 13-3. The leaders of the team were captain Paul Smith and Most Valuable Carl Bell. Coach Scoggin named Naji Salhab Most Improved. — MAH

For the first time in its history, the team defeated Hermitage. Coach Scoggin commented, "It was the best we played as a team."

One would find the team working long and hard every day after school except on Fridays. The practices consisted of running laps, working with the ball machine, and other team members in other matches. When the ball machine was in use, Coach Scoggin would adjust the speed to various shots. This also helped in determining a player's strengths and weaknesses.

During the matches one would find the team members who were not playing giving the team members who were support and confidence. When a player won her match, there was a feeling of victory and accomplishment for the entire team.

At the end of the year the team honored the team members with awards. # Breakin' takes off

EVERYBODY . . . BREAKDANCE!

Breakdancing, the newest form of dancing has become more popular than the twist. Rolling on one's back, shoulders, or spinning on one's head was the system. Many enjoyed combining "Shalimar," which gives the effect of walking on air, with "Popping," where the dancer "breaks up" his body in one constant motion, to work out routines. Some dancing groups enjoyed performing for the school. One such group was the Floor Masters.

Wayne Breedlove, Andrea Cooper, and Rodney Blowe made up the group. The three of them often learned new moves from breakdancing groups such as the New York City Breakdancers, L.A. Breakdancers, and the Lock-Pop Breakers. With every new dance comes a new vocabulary. A wack was a person who could not breakdance, at all! If a person was fresh, he looked good while he was breakdancing.

A chill was a person who was an average dancer. There were also new dance moves that had to be learned and named. Some of the harder moves were the "helicopter," "windmill," and the "top." Andre Cooper stated "anyone who has flexibility, determination, and a good teacher can stop being a wack and start BREAKDANCING!" — RMM, SLF

KENNY EXCELS

"A young wrestling team, according to Coach Pennington," ended up second in the district," Bernard Kenny was the Richmond Christmas Tournament champion, regional champion, and finished second in the state tournament. "I was amazed," said Bernard. "The competition was much harder and I didn't expect to go as far as I did. It was a great accomplishment." Four of the victories came down to the last match with Mike Fisher winning for the team." The team did a much better job than I expected," said Coach Pennington, "while there are four seniors leaving, we still have experience returning at eleven weight classes, so next year looks promising." — DLS

Youth and inexperience plague any team and the softball team was no different. Yet co-captains Lisa Etter, Laura Martin, and Christine Young led the team to satisfying victories over AK, JHW, and St. Gertrudes.

Voted best offensive player, Julie Frise also made the all-district team. Robin O'Neil, the team's best defensive player, was slated to be a future team captain. Laura Martin was deemed Most Dedicated, Christine Young, Most Valuable, and Tonya Hester was voted Most Improved.

Even losses provided experience and the opportunity to grow and improve. This improvement should add the satisfaction of a winning season to the joy of playing.

Tucker Defeated

One of the biggest highlights for this year's varsity baseball team was defeating the no. 1 team, Tucker, 6-4. Frankie Pridemore stated, "We were happy to have defeated the no. 1 team, and will continue our victories."

The team had a very successful season with 14 wins and 4 losses. Coach Metzger stated, "This is one of the best teams I've coached since I've been teaching here; they've worked especially hard all season and it paid off. The team had a lot of talent and the seniors will be missed next year."

Special awards were given to Most Valuable — Mike Walden, Most Improved — Tom Pack, Team before self — Wayne Meade, Coaches Award — Donnie Goodman.

"The season went extremely well," stated Coach Metzger, "and there were no disappointments because with the final record of 14-4 the season was definitely a success." — JFP

PLAY WITH HUSTLE

Playing with lots of hustle and enthusiasm, the j.v. baseball team ended fifth in the final standings. Although there were a lot of illnesses and injuries to overcome, according to Coach Cain, the team worked together.

This was Coach David Cain's first year of coaching j.v. baseball. Coach Cain commented, "I think the team adjusted well to a new coach." Three team members, John Talley, Shawn Davis and Bubbie Angle, played on the varsity team for the last three games of the season. It was a season of great accomplishments.

Jones Is New

One of the biggest changes for this year's soccer team was their new coach, Mr. Ted Jones. Bobby Trainum commented, "Having a new coach, the team had to adjust to his new ways of teaching; also we were a young team and that affected our season as well."

Although the season did not go as expected, Coach Jones said they played well in tough matches and only lost four games by one each. Since the team lost six seniors last year, it was difficult to build a tough competitive team. Coach Jones stated, "We should see a major improvement in both the turn out and the results of the soccer team next year."

BAD BREAKS

What does it take to be a good gymnast? A lot of time and training," said Coach Wise. The girls have started out taking gymnastics at an early age. So why did the team have such a bad season? "The team could have been twice as good if there weren't so many injuries," said Coach Wise. Natalie Williams broke her arm, which put her out of competition for the entire season. Traci Wheeless was out for the first two meets with a sprained ankle and Nikki Tarlton also broke her arm. "The team ranked only seventh in the final league standing," said Wise, "but next year should be outstanding." Natalie Williams will be competing again as well as two freshmen.

Tracy Wheeless was considered most valuable. Most improved was Jamie Wheeless and most spirited was Angie Murphy. The best on the beam went to Francine Lyons. Sharon Fuquay was best on uneven bars as well as the vault, and Angie Murphy was the best on the floor. DLS

Records Fall

Many records were broken by the track team this season. They were set by senior captains Bob Christian and Theron Davis. Bob Christian received title of State Champ for shot-put at 57'4", breaking the school record by two inches. Theron Davis was ranked third in the nation by Track and Field News in the long jump.

Theron also broke a school record of 23'9" by jumping 24'2½".

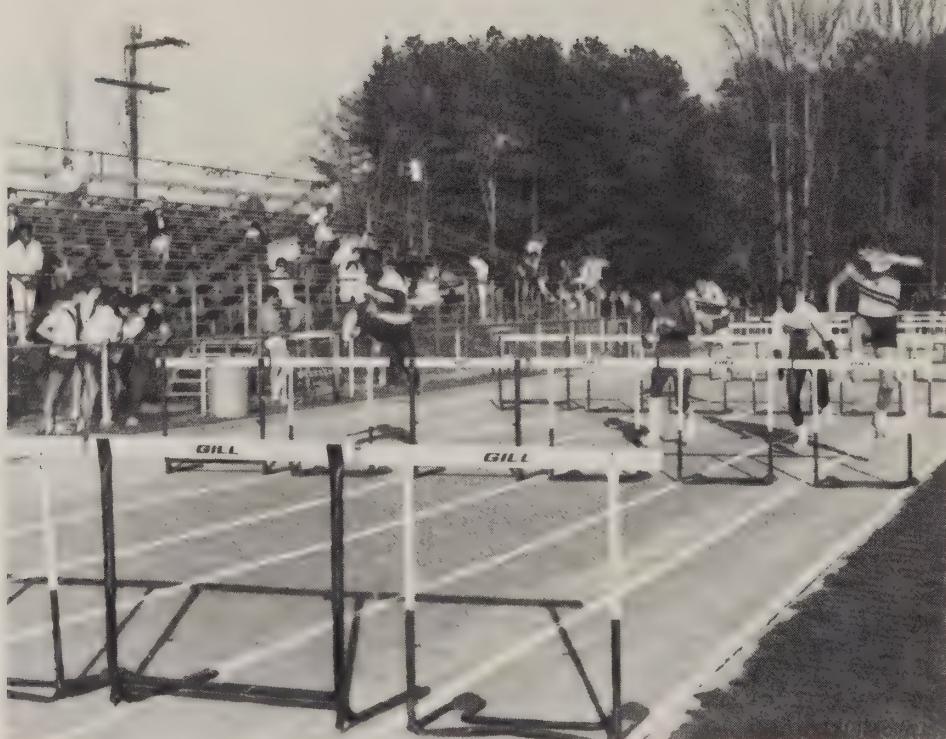

There were also two other players who broke records.

They were Anthony Bowman, high jumping 6'7" on his first time, and Aston McCatty winning the regionals as a tenth grader. Said Coach Spain, "Many injuries that involved many important meets kept us from winning. Theron received a hamstring and Bob received shin splints."

The freshmen of the team did an outstanding job and Coach Spain said he would be looking forward to working with them again. — MAH

Discussing a new fund raiser, Mike Giles finds time to share a joke.

What is FCA?

What is FCA? Many people asked that question this year. FCA stands for Fellowship of Christian Athletes and is an organization for those people who are Christians and take part in some type of sport.

FCA had many activities such as cookouts, fund raisers, trips to college basketball games, and having college athletes come to talk to members about peer pressure and how to become a better Christian. Ms. Cullen, one of the clubs sponsors, said, "This club is very active and has 30 members, which is excellent for a first year organization."

At the beginning of the year FCA officers were selected. The officers were President, Wayne Meade, Vice President, Mike Tyler, Secretary, Tangela Foster, Treasurer, Willie Wood, Membership Chairman, Andy Grove, and Historian, Nikki Tarlton. These officers made FCA successful throughout the year, and FCA will continue to stand out among other clubs. — JFP, YDC

MINDS REEL

Academics . . . Just a mention of the word sent minds reeling. Visions of paper, pencils and books popped into students' heads: the miles of notes, the countless pencils and pens, and all the tests and quizzes.

Some may have thought that all the work was in vain, but most considered it part of getting a much-needed education. The hardest parts were listening to lectures for seven periods, as well as all the painstaking research for special projects and reports.

In retrospect, students had a feeling of accomplishment rather than relief. They felt that their time had not been wasted, and all of their hard work had paid off.

ENGLISH, MORE THAN RULES

Most students viewed English as just another required course. What they did not realize was that English offered more than grammar rules and vocabulary. Along with basic grammar rules, students studied new words which greatly expanded their vocabulary, as well as literature by the great authors, which helped them appreciate reading.

Another part of some English classes was the writing of term papers. Some classes were allowed to write on topics of their choice, while others had assigned topics. Students' opinions on term papers varied greatly. Some enjoyed the challenge of writing, while others thought that it was a bother, mostly due to the large amount of reading required.

Students' opinions of English as a course varied just as much. Some enjoyed working with words and rules, while others preferred more technical subjects, such as math or science.

RIGHT: In answering a question, Mr. Fox emphasizes an additional point concerning sentence structure.

BETWEEN: Paper in hand, David Johnson puts a homework assignment on the board.

MATH, MAJOR PART OF SOCIETY

Addition, subtraction, equations, formulas . . . Most students faced these types of problems in their math classes, starting with algebra as a freshman.

Some students took only two years of math, algebra and geometry, to satisfy graduation requirements, while others elected to continue their math studies.

These math-oriented students took Algebra II and then went on to math analysis as preparation for a career in a math-related field. Other students jumped on the technology bandwagon by enrolling in the computer programming classes. These classes taught students BASIC programming language, while also showing them practical applications for computers in society.

Because math seemed such an integral part of society, students viewed math as more of a necessity than an option. They also thought that math provided a greater understanding of the environment.

MAN, WOMAN, CHILD AND PIG

In science, students got the chance to answer many puzzling questions about life and its make-up. Questions about the origin of the universe to the parts of the body were answered.

In physical science, students learned about the stars and different aspects of the universe. They also did scientific notation, later expanded in chemistry.

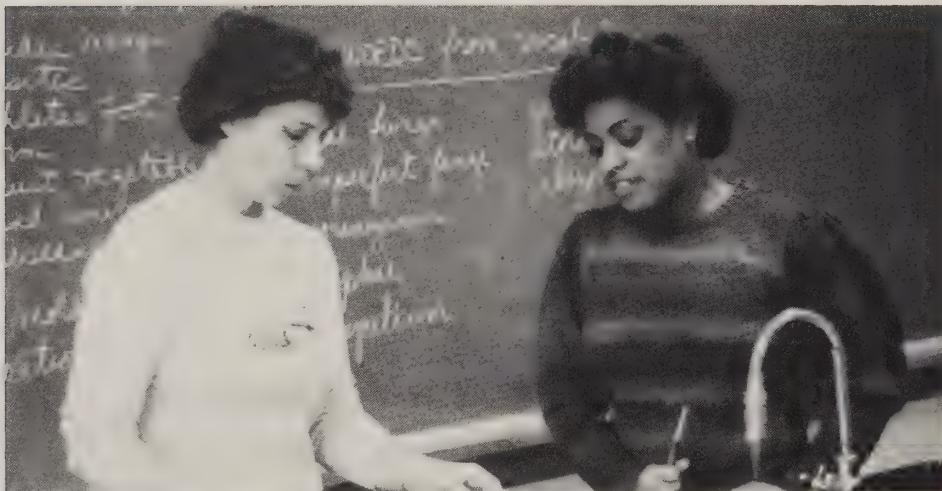

During biology and advanced biology, students learned things from the breakdown of simple sugars to the dissection of pigs. Even though biology is taken two years before advanced biology, both classes were able to dissect pigs. Unlike biology, advanced biology students didn't stop at the heart and lungs.

They continued to dissect eyes, brain, ears, etc. By doing this they could further their knowledge of the human organs in terms of their relationship to the organs of a pig. Darlene Crutchfield commented, "I always looked at cutting animals up as nasty, but I was really surprised at how the different organs looked."

Even though science was required for only two years, many students found themselves taking three and sometimes four years of it. For some, it was the challenge of the many experiments, while others felt it was the chance to answer many questions, and pave the way for new ones.

WHY HISTORY?

Most students thought of history as just a class in which to learn who discovered what and when. Besides that, they were able to receive answers to many puzzling questions.

As one walked through the history hall, he may have heard discussions ranging from current events, the World Wars, or the elections, as well as many other topics. Nevertheless, the teachers' eagerness for discussion made the class much more pleasant and informative.

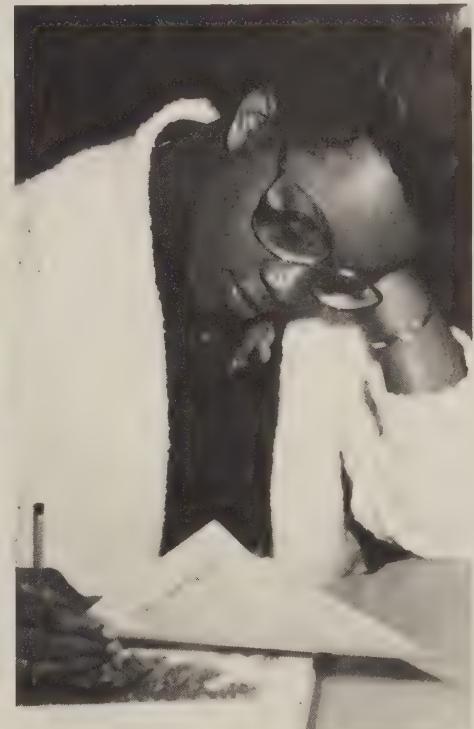

By the second year, students began to stop looking upon the class as a must, but instead saw it as a bridge between now and the past. They also realized the importance of understanding the past, since so much of the governmental procedures and world affairs derived from it.

SYMPHONY HEARD ON BUSINESS HALL

If one walked through the business department, typewriter keys popped, key punchers clicked, and computer printouts rang. Those were just a few of the sounds that could be heard from the many rooms.

Because business ranged from job interviews to tax returns, it benefited all students, not just those who were planning on making it their future. Tangela Foster stated, "My business class covered such a wide range of items that I decided to take two this year."

Accounting, office skills, and computer programming were just a few of the classes offered. Accounting focused on keeping records in the form of balance sheets, journals, and ledgers. While office skills focused on filing and dictation, computer programming taught the students how to actually program an Apple II computer.

With the help of the business courses and the increased computer courses, students were even better prepared for the new world of technology. DJM

What's that Smell?

What was that smell? One could always smell something baking when walking through the main hall upstairs. Depending on which period one walked down the hall, the aroma could have been coming from either a catering or home economic class. Other classes offered by the home economic department included Child Care I and II, senior family living, clothing management, and food management. Taking these classes allowed some students to enjoy planning for their futures. Catering and child care were geared to career-seeking students. In clothing and food management students learned about fashions and fads and managing a gourmet restaurant. Home Economics I and II taught students to sew, cook, and about home life and babysitting. Senior family living provided a non-skills course for seniors to discuss personal development, family, dating, and marriage. This class also held a mock wedding and reception. Preparation for the future was important to the students who took home economic classes, and the classes allowed them to have fun while learning fundamentals of life.

POLICE VISIT DRIVER'S ED.

Becoming a sophomore didn't only mean the end of the freshman jokes or the ordering of class rings; it also meant the chance to get one's driver's license.

Taking Driver's Ed. was one of the most important aspects of the sophomore year. Many students took the class with the intention of watching a few movies, driving around the parking lot a few times, and then becoming an instant driver. Once they began the class, they realized it was a lot like any of their other classes. There were a lot of notes, homework assignments, and discussions.

Driver's Ed. was divided into classroom and range/simulator. While in the classroom, students held many discussions concerning drunk driving and driving safety. They also had visitors like Officer Stanley of the county police department, who talked to the classes about different aspects of driving correctly.

During the simulator, student sat in automobile mockups while watching driving films and acting accordingly.

During the range, students had the chance to drive actual cars through a course designed to help students learn to control and maneuver a car.

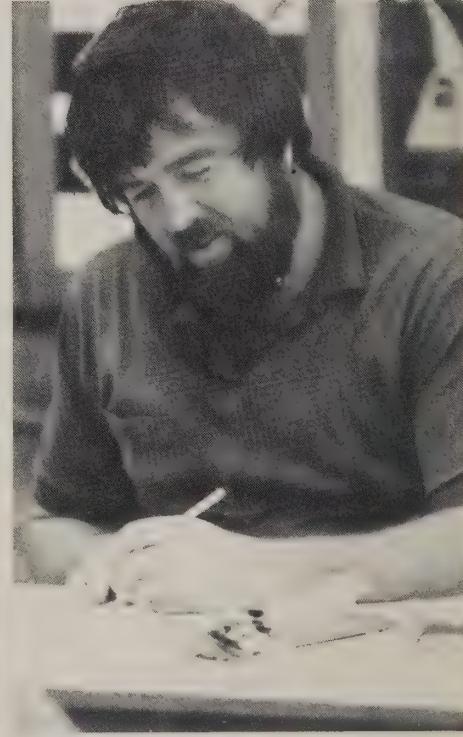

Students were surprised when they realized that as much time and effort were required in Driver's Ed. as in their other courses. However, they had to admit that it was worth all of their effort to be able to receive their license and quickly put it to use.

P.E. OFFERED VARIETY

Upon entering the gym during any given period one would see and hear at least fifty P.E. students playing basketball, volleyball, or any of the other team or individual activities available. However, these activities were not always limited to the confines of the gym. Outdoors, students participated in touch football, track events, archery, tennis, and golf.

Most students enjoyed P.E. with a few exceptions. Some felt that two weeks in a classroom studying health was too much, even though an equal amount of time was spent participating in athletic activities.

Among the newer things, a revised grading system was introduced, based on the old scale. The new system was warmly welcomed by the P.E. department. The updated system worked well, as one teacher commented, "It had been needed for a long time." — D.A.L.

THEY OFFERED MORE

"I'm taking a foreign language only because it is required for college acceptance," was a comment heard from many students. Although the intrigue of learning a new language attracted some students to sign up for a foreign language, a majority of students viewed taking a foreign language as a bother.

Once enrolled, the students found the class enjoyable. Vocabulary, verb forms, and sentence building were all part of the curriculum. The teachers enjoyed teaching just as much or more than the students enjoyed participating. After the year was over the students were glad they had signed up.

Three new teachers joined the foreign language faculty. Mrs. Gooss, and Mrs. Tucker, who both came from Fairfield, and Mrs. McKearney, from New York, were welcome additions to the department. — D.A.L.

How Do You Spell Success? — BAND

How many hours did the band practice this summer? — approximately 200! They finally paid off when the band won sixteen awards in three competitions. They demonstrated their enthusiasm when supporting the football team. Though the football team did not have a winning season, the band continually supported them. Band director, Mr. Joyner, and bandfront director, Mrs. Cook, enjoyed the students and the feeling of accomplishment that the students felt after a perfectly executed performance. Though many of the student devoted much of their time to band, they did not think of it as a possible career. Throughout the year the Chambers Singers, Concert Choir, and Springer Singers performed concerts. Christmas concerts were performed at Eastgate Mall, Regency Square, St. John's Church, and our own auditorium. Later in the spring the Concert Choir and the Chamber Singers entered competitions at Kings Dominion and Nashville, Tennessee. "We had a great time in Nashville, "remembered Tina Wilcher. ## I.C.T. Prepares You!

The Industrial Cooperative Training Program was a cooperative effort between the public schools of Henrico County and the trade, industrial, and health-related businesses in the area. Once enrolled in the I.C.T. program, students received both classroom and on-the-job training in their chosen field which consisted not only of career training, but of learning about employer-employee relationships as well as how to work out a budget, and keep records.

On the job, students earned over $3.00 an hour for working at least 15 hours per week, while gaining valuable experience in the working world. This experience greatly helped them when they entered the full-time job market.

The I.C.T. Program did more than help students find jobs and teach them how to hold a position. It showed students that working is a large responsibility, which can, and should be, enjoyable as well as satisfying. — CT and DAL ### a job?

The distributive education classes offered students a choice of areas in which they could specialize, including marketing and fashion merchandising.

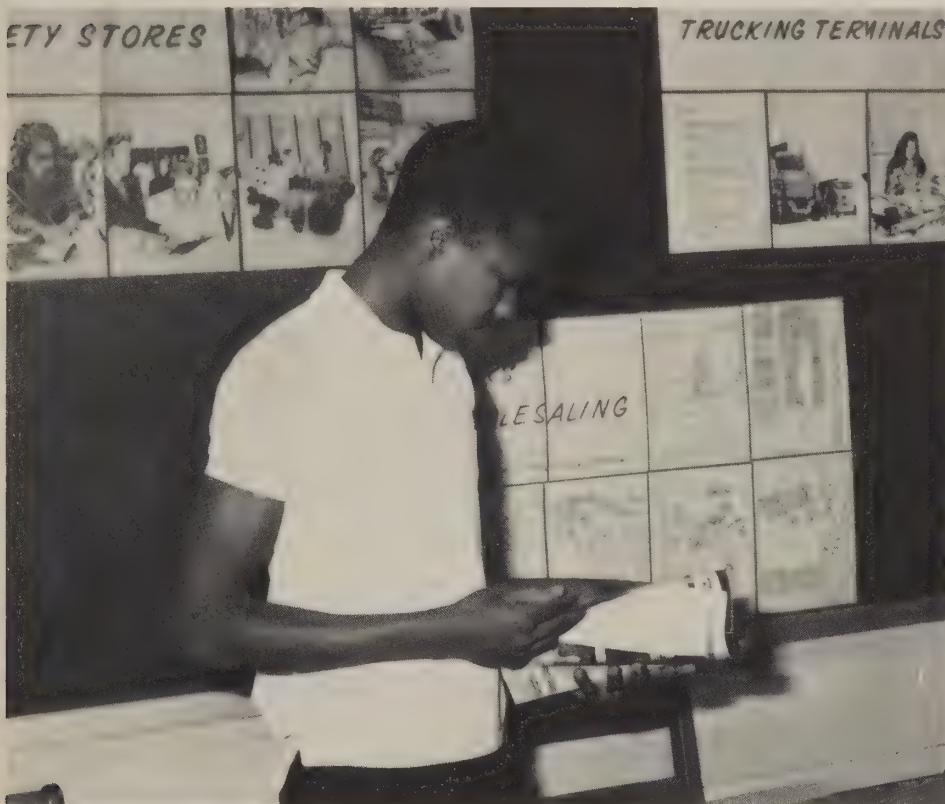

Students enrolled in the marketing classes were required to hold a job the entire year. They received one credit for passing and another for working. These classes prepared the students for a job in the area of their choice. They learned that a great amount of responsibility comes with a job, and that good employee-employer relationships were vital to a successful job.

During their fashion merchandising classes, students learned the ins and outs of modeling, as techniques and employee responsibilities. Students also organized an immensely successful fashion show to demonstrate what they had learned.

Distributive Education helped students prepare for careers, while also showing them that there was more to a job than just work.

VARIETY ATTRACTED MANY

The industrial arts department offered drafting, wood shop, photography, and graphic arts to provide an escape from the drudgery of everyday academic classes for many students. Other students enrolled to prepare for a career in one of those technical fields.

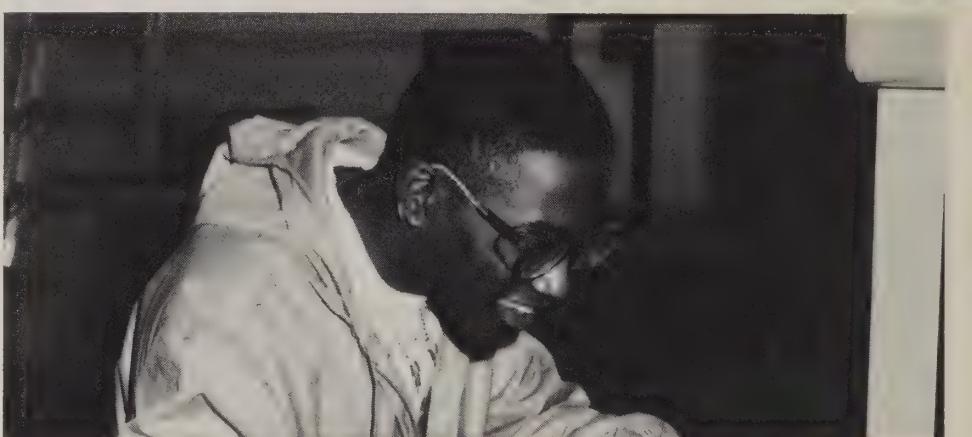

Students drew plans, shot and developed lots of pictures, and created many interesting projects such as tables, chairs, photo essays, and drawing portfolios for their classes. Many of the best projects were entered in the Festival of Arts and Technology to be judged and put on display for all to see.

Students fully enjoyed their classes. The industrial arts classes provided them with an area in which to focus their energy on constructive goals while having fun and learning a skill at the same time. — D.A.L.

STUDENTS REINFORCED

Reading center helped improve a student's reading ability. It focused on the weak points while reinforcing the strong. Because many students' reading abilities differed, the reading center contained two sections, reading improvement and developmental reading.

While in reading improvement, the students learned how to expand their reading and vocabulary abilities. By focusing on the main subject, the students learned to get more out of their readings. They were also given words from their stories to help increase their vocabulary.

During developmental reading, the students learned how to read faster while continually getting more from their reading. Because the classes gave the students a chance to improve individually and reinforce their abilities, it was appreciated by all. — DJM

LIBRARY PROVIDES SERVICES

More than just a room full of books, the library provided many services for the students. Open before, during, and after school, the library proved an invaluable source of information and help.

Students viewed the library as a perfect place to study and do homework, for it was free of the distractions and noise normally found in the classroom. Others used the library's reference materials to research subjects used in reports and papers for many of their classes. Although the library has thousands of books available, there would always be a shortage of books by a certain author or on a particular subject when a teacher would assign research papers.

Credit cannot be given only to the library itself. The librarians helped find books for students, check books out, and put them in their proper place when returned. The librarians ultimately deserved the credit for maintaining a smooth-running, efficient library that was always there when the students needed it. — D.A.L.

CREDIT GOES TO STAFF

Most of us never think of the jobs the staff does, nor can we comprehend their responsibilities. However, if credit is given, the majority of it would go to the staff for all the things that they have done for the school. They prepared and served our lunches, and after lunch, they cleaned up the mess that we left behind.

Besides lunch, the staff worked before and after school. Often, the custodians could be seen cleaning a classroom, or repairing a desk or a fountain long after the students had gone home. Unfortunately, the staff seldom received a thank you for the jobs they did, although the school could not be run without them.

Secretaries Do More

"When do you need this memorandum?" questioned Mrs. Roberson, Mr. Hunt's secretary. This was just one of the small tasks Mrs. Roberson and the other secretaries performed daily. They also took phone messages, called substitutes, and filed papers.

Though they were constantly working, they enjoyed the diversity of it. They were exposed to different types of people and worked well with them. They each had different bosses and different daily jobs, but their purposes were similar. - CT

HUNDREDS APPRECIATED COUNSELORS' HELP

The guidance counselors were a vital part of the year for every student. Students turned to the counselors for advice concerning course selection, applying to colleges, and career choices. The counselors provided a wealth of information to the students, who were grateful for the help. Other duties during the year included informing students of PSAT and SAT scores, as well as scheduling classes.

Our counselors were at school during the summer going over grades, as well as helping students with summer school registration. They were also there to confer with parents concerned about their child's performance in the classroom.

Although they had hundreds of students to attend to, the counselors always had time to help with special problems. This assistance was well received by the students, who greatly appreciated the counselors' time.

SENIOR — a student in his fourth year of high school or college, n.

Just what is a senior? It is someone who has faced many things in four years of high school. From the first day as freshmen to their last night together, the seniors learned to drive, took SAT tests, danced at the prom and marched at graduation. Throughout the senior year, one could hear talk about wanting to graduate but also reminiscences as well. Though sad to leave their high school, seniors looked forward to many opportunities. P.L.A.

BETWEEN: After throwing the football, quarterback Wayne Meade looks to see if it was completed.

"Say Cheese!"

"What's next?" was one of the many questions heard when the seniors had pictures taken. After putting on a gown to pose for her picture, one girl said she could not believe that her four years of high school was coming to an end. For others, it symbolized not only an end of high school but also a new beginning.

Several weeks later, proofs arrived. Though a few students did not approve of their pictures, most were very satisfied. After the pictures were returned, students exchanged them with their classmates. As one person said, "The pictures will keep my memories of high school with me forever. — S.L.

Expenses Worth Being a Senior

During their senior year, students felt they had spent a fortune. Pictures cost close to two hundred dollars for many. To receive a 1984 Highlander, a student had to pay fifteen dollars. In the fall, many bought their senior tee-shirts for ten dollars. For graduation paraphernalia, the students spent up to eighty dollars more. The prom, for many, was quite expensive also. An average of one hundred dollars was spent that weekend. The class sold many items as fund-raisers to pay for graduation at the Mosque. These ranged from kazoos to buttons of every type, costing up to a dollar each. Though it was expensive to be a senior, many students felt it was worth every penny. — S.L.

Seniors Go Separate Ways

"What will you be doing five years from now?" When asked this question, many seniors did not know. However, Michelle Tucker felt that she would be married and working as a dental hygienist. Wayne Meade said, "I will be a preacher at a very large church." Julie Coppedge replied that she would be a pharmacist. Working for the Fire Department was in Roy Sprouse's plans. Roy Satterwhite expected to be in school working on his master's degree. No matter what the seniors planned, most felt their last year at high school was the best and they would remember it always. — S.L.

SENIORS SHOOT FOR THE STARS, AGAIN

Four weeks before Homecoming, the Class of '84 was busy making flowers, building framework and attaching chicken wire for their float. Help was one thing the seniors needed, according to one float worker. The creativity of Mr. Wise and Mrs. Woodward enabled the class of 84 to have a first place float for the third time.

A star, a pearl-handled gun and many lights were the elements of the senior float. The gun consisted of a moving trigger, hammer and bullet chamber. When it was time to move the float onto the football field, a problem arose. It was too large to fit through the gate. To fit, the float had to be broken. Despite the problems, the Class of '84 won the float competition for the last year. — S.L.

A TIME TO GROW UP

Their four years led the Class of '84 to maturity. As freshmen, we remember paper airplanes and spitballs flying across the classroom. As sophomores, we started growing up and buckling down. For most, studying became very important, but we still had fun. Practical jokes occurred quite often even though we were in our second year of high school. During the junior year, dating began and for many, very seriously. The prom enabled us to dress formally for the first time and attend a formal dance. As seniors, we faced many decisions which before, we had not even considered, such as colleges and careers. Though for many, high school was a time for study, it was also a time for growing up and facing reality. — S.L.

JU-NIOR — a third year student in a high school or college.

A junior who is on the borderline of seniordom and almost ready to accept senior responsibilities, climbing up the ladder away from their freshman and sophomore years.

Throughout the year juniors faced many important decisions. The planning of their future became a major consideration in choosing classes for their senior year. Many who planned to graduate and get a job took business and trade related classes, while collegebound students prepared to take "B" level or honors classes. Other less important decisions included whether to get a job or not, who to take out on the weekend, and where to go.

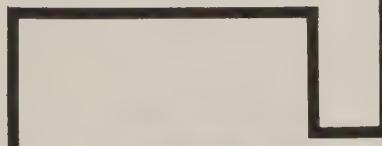

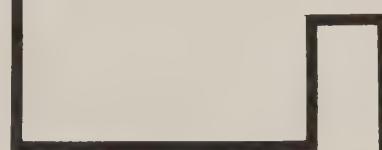

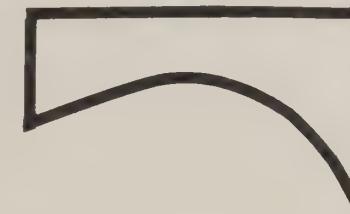

Nicknamed the "Jammin Juniors," they always found time to socialize whether it was at school or at favorite hangouts such as Burger King or the Celebrity Room. Though many juniors took part in activities such as the float, prom, and fund raisers, all of the juniors strived to be the best, the PEOPLE at Highland Springs. S.L.F., R.M.M.

Want to meet an Interesting person?

Want to meet an interesting person? Introduce yourself to Paige Beattie. Paige's activities during school as well as after school, kept her busy. She involved herself with children, music, and dancing. She worked part-time at a daycare center and enjoyed teaching the children. "People should have a goal in life and try to reach it," said Paige. Some of her goals for the next five years were to graduate from a four-year college and get a job that she could excell in. She was in Thespians, an honors drama club, a drum major, and a third year French student. These things kept Paige busy. Paige Beattie was considered by many upper classmen to be a great example for the under classmen to follow.-SLF

Steppin' Out

The Class of 1985 hosted the first prom to be held off campus. The juniors raised money for the selling of buttons and bumper stickers that read: "I love the class of 1985" They held "The Great Playoff" competition again, and they also had a dance on January 20th. The prom was held at the newly redecorated Howard Johnson's, downtown from 8:00-12:00. The theme was "Steppin' Out." During the four hours, the students danced, talked about the decorations, and the band while they enjoyed hot hors d'oeuvres. They also enjoyed listening to the band KASH which included a former Springer, Lenny Holmes. The junior class was proud to have the prom be such a success.-SLF

Do You Want Trade Places

Often times we wish we were in someone else's shoes. Juniors were asked, "If you could trade places with anyone in the junior class, who would it be?" Many students laughed and said they would rather just be themselves. A few brave souls admitted their desire to be someone else. Including the class sponsors in the poll, Mrs. Griffin says she would like to be 6' tall Tracey Weakley. Mr. Fox would like to be Chris Parkhurst because he admired him. Sherry Baker would like to be Stan Brown because she wants to know if the rumors about the boy's locker room were true. Some students said they would like to trade with someone smarter. Theresa Jeter said "I would like to be Doug Hobson because he has the intelligence that I could never have." While some of the students dreamed of qualities that they could never have themselves, others admitted that they were content just being themselves, no matter how hard the task.-SLF, RMM

Reach for the Stars

The Junior class began working on its float in an airport hanger on September 10th and worked hard until October 6th. The theme was "Springers reach for the stars!" A 30 foot flatbed decorated with space ships, stars, rocks, flashing lights and thousands of paper flowers made up the float. Local businesses donated many of the materials needed to create what the students hoped would be a winner. The class sponsors, Mr. Fox and Mrs. Griffin, worked hard after school and on weekends to show their dedication to the Junior class. The students showed their appreciation by presenting them with four linen napkins and Pewter napkins rings inscribed with "Junior class, 83-84."

SOPHOMORE — a student in his second year of high school or college, n.

What is a sophomore? To upperclassmen, someone who was definitely below them, and to the freshman, someone that they would rather be. To the class of '86, the word had another meaning. It was the year of a school ring, or a driver's license, but it was much more. It was also the year one could receive his own identity. No longer at the bottom of the ladder, one could for once fit into more upperclass activities such as yearbook, SODA, J.V. or sometimes varsity teams.

One also started caring more about his or her classes and grades for the various honor societies. Being a sophomore provided the experience to survive the rest of the school years. — P.L.A.

RINGS ARE SPECIAL TO STUDENTS

What item could one purchase for him to remember his high school years? A class ring, of course. The sophomore class had a meeting during one Wednesday homeroom and the following week received order forms for their rings. Many students spent hours with the booklet trying to decide which stone or type of ring to order.

The class of eighty-six had a better selection of rings than the previous classes. Along with the traditional rings, a new la petite collection appeared with more variety. The prices ranged from $68.90 to $290.00. Many sophomores felt that the price held a lower priority than having a ring that was special to them now and for years to come. P.L.A.

JOB HUNTING

The time came for students to begin looking for a job after they became sophomores. Their expenses multiplied throughout the year, from buying a class ring to owning a car. Many students found job hunting the only answer. Jobs ranged from bagging groceries at Winn Dixie to serving ice-cream at Mayberry's. The students experienced an added responsibility and a sense of freedom. In return for their hard work, the students received — MONEY!! — C.T., K.R.H.

"Fasten your seatbelt", "Look straight ahead" and "Slow down" were a few of the many expressions heard by sophomores enrolled in Driver's Ed. Not only did the students learn to drive, they also studied the "rules of the road." To receive driving papers, the students had to drive on the highways, country roads, and interstate to experience the different situations they would face in the future.

For many sophomores, the ability to drive provided a new freedom. Instead of being chauffeured to movies, restaurants by their parents or friends, the students could take themselves. Even though licenses provided a new freedom, it also provided new responsibilities for the students.

Sponsors Assets

What is behind the making of a good sophomore class? A sophomore class sponsor. The sponsors, Mr. Rawls, and Mrs. Shreve, worked with the class on the float and helped with fundraising for future events such as prom and graduation.

What did the sophomore class think of their sponsors? Natalie Williams felt that Mrs. Shreve had a lot of spirit and involvement in the class. Linnea Petty felt the same, but added that she felt that the sponsors were very dedicated to the class. They pushed the class hard into winning the spirit link sales during the fall pep rallies. The sophomores class continued to make money to be selling Christmas gift wrap. The class proved that good class sponsors were great assets.

FRESHMAN — a beginner, newcomer; a first year student; n.

Most freshmen were glad to be at Highland Springs. They enjoyed being known as high school students for the first time. Coming to Highland Springs brought them more privileges, a freer atmosphere, and opportunities to join clubs and participate in other activities. Although the 9th graders' activities were more limited than other classes, they made the most of what they did have. Although the year provided many challenges, the freshmen met and conquered most of them, looking forward to a new year. — YDC

Expenses Rise

While starting out their first year at Highland Springs, many freshmen experienced the unexpected. Some freshmen who were old enough to work chose to get a job in order to afford some of the expenses of high school. "Getting a job left me extra money to spend on some of my different activities," said one working freshman. Others who were unable to work faced many expenses such as class dues and locker fees.

Viewing the upperclassmen out having a good time, they saw that money was needed for their social life. The freshmen had other expenses such as weekly Friday night football games, pizza parties, movies, skating, plays at night or during school. The freshmen also had many other expenses such as fund-raising events buying Springer shirts, towels and cups to help support the school.-YOC

WHAT'S A DATE?

Because freshmen could not obtain their licenses until their sophomore year, they had a hard time dating. However, was dating strictly getting in the car and going out with someone? Many freshmen didn't think so. What did they define as a date? Some said that they just met their boyfriends or girlfriends at each other's house during the weekend, and they considered that a date. Others said, a long walk or even going to the library could be a date. When asked the definition of a date, Lisa Christian replied, "A date isn't just getting in the car and going someplace. It's being with someone you like and enjoying yourself." -YDC

CAN'T DRIVE?

Driving was a problem many freshmen faced when they wanted to go on a date. They either had their parents take them where they wanted to go or they double dated with an upperclassman. It was alright for a girl to date an upperclassman, but it wasn't tradition for a boy to do so. Since they could not drive, most freshmen spent time together at school between classes or during lunch. Several people said that they were able to see their boyfriend or girlfriend more during the week than on weekends. Instead of riding around like other teenagers did, they spent more time at each other's house, talking. Even though they were not able to drive, the freshmen still found other ways to spend time together.-YDC

Personality Required

The question, "What is your description of a perfect date?" brought among some interesting responses from freshmen.

Tania Farmer said, "He has to be very considerate, have a good personality, and good looks."

Lisa Christian said, "He has to be 5 feet 9 inches tall, wavy hair, light-skinned, and have a good personality."

Stephawn Fobbs, said, "He has to have a good personality, and fit the qualifications of tall, dark, and handsome."

Although the descriptions brought various opinions, the freshmen polled all agreed that a good personality was a number-one must in their companion.

Freshmen Fit In

On August 29, 1983, former eighth graders moved up to High School. Freshmen, the largest class, learned to fit in with upperclassmen. They learned what it was like to be in high school and some of the advantages and disadvantages of being a freshman. At pep rallies they showed class spirit by participating in class competitions and buying spirit links. When asked what it was like to be a freshman, Chris Thomas replied, "It's fun and kind of exciting and a big experience starting all over again."

Even though they were faced with the challenges of a new school, freshmen adapted very well. Many walked around as if they had been here the year before. The freshmen class was anxious to get involved in sports such as soccer and golf and gorups such as the Key Club, which they had not been offered at Fairfield.

The freshmen class also showed class spirit by building a float for the Homecoming parade. Many liked the idea of having upperclassmen in some of their classes such as history and math. They felt this made it easier to make new friends. Although the year provided many challenges, the freshmen met and conquered them all with true Springer spirit.

FACULTY

TIME OVERLOOKED

As the bell proclaimed the end of the school day and the students scurried anxiously, the work had just begun for many of the teachers. They could be found staying after school for an hour or more grading papers, giving make-up quizzes, or helping students.

Students failed to realize that the teachers had up to 150 students. When multiplied by 15 grades, it equalled 2,250 per six weeks to grade. Although their hard work and time was sometimes overlooked, students' improvement made the effort worthwhile. — DJM

FROM WALES TO THE U.S.

Tenby, Wales, was the home of Mr. Ted Jones before he moved to the United States two years ago. He taught sophomore English. Mr. Jones coached the soccer team and directed the school play. Many students were amazed when they first heard him speak. They thought he was a good teacher with a new and different approach to the language. He has been teaching both in Wales and in the United States for four years. During his spare time, Mr. Jones enjoyed music, reading, war games, and skiing. He remarked that he enjoyed being at Highland Springs. — S.L.

EMOTIONAL OUTLET NEEDED

After spending five days a week dealing with students and paperwork, many teachers found relaxing hobbies to participate in. Two examples were singing and calligraphy.

Coach Don Wade, for example, could be heard singing in the church choir or at a nursing home along with his brother on the weekends.

Mrs. Dianne McGuinness enjoyed calligraphy as a hobby. She did this as an art form and as a way to make extra money. Some of her work included personal invitations, signs, memory books, and graduation tickets.

Teachers also needed an emotional outlet, and some used their hobbies for this as well as a way to benefit others.

The yearbook staff would like to thank People magazine for the use of their logo which we used as the theme for our yearbook. We would also like to thank Mr. Wise for helping with the artwork on the cover and throughout the book. Thanks to all members of the faculty for letting staffers and students out of class for pictures, and for succumbing to painful interviews. Additional thanks are due to Mrs. Bobbio's typing classes for help with the index, to Prestige Portraits for photography, and to Mr. John Collie for his advice and help.

Seniors leave survival ideas

A variety of activities made up of every student's life throughout the year. Homework became the chore that everyone planned his or her schedule around. The extra time was spent working or participating in extracurricular activities. Some confused freshmen had to learn quickly about high school life as the hallways seemed to transform into intricate mazes. At the end of the year some freshmen were chosen as guides, and Jamie Wheeless and Tabby Atkins were asked to speak at freshman orientation. The sophomores, settling into high school became more involved by signing up to be prom servers, joining clubs, and trying out for sports. Juniors learned to adapt to large work loads. They provided for and planned a very successful prom with the theme "Steppin' Out." Selected juniors were candlebearers at graduation. Seniors prepared to face a life in which career choices were inevitable and planning was a must. Choosing graduation paraphernalia and applying to colleges became major chores as "senioritis" gripped many. At the end of the year some seniors were sad to be leaving favorite teachers and friends. They taught the junior class how to rule and left the underclassmen with ideas on how to survive and be the best, the PEOPLE of Highland Springs. — RMM
